We are writing to object to the proposal that Tregarthen's Hotel be permitted to demolish the on site staff accommodation in order to build a number of self catering properties to expand their business. The staff are or are to be accommodated in houses away from the hotel in quiet residential areas and are under no control of the hotel especially as to the level of noise which would not be permitted by the hotel for fear of upsetting their own guests. This will cause problems for neighbours many of whom have small businesses which depend on peace and quiet. Removing dwellings from the local housing stock will also cause a further problem for people wishing to have a home of their own here in the Islands. Scilly is a very special and beautiful place mainly dependent on tourism. Visitors spend a lot of money to come here to enjoy a peaceful holiday away from their usual stressful lives and have no desire to have noise disturbances near their chosen accommodation.

We are also surprised that no permission need be given for a change of use from a normal dwelling or guest house to a hotel staff hostel.
