Site Description and Proposed Development

Moyana is a single dwelling house located on an elevated plot at the top of Porthloo Hill with access from Porthloo Lane opposite the junction with Golf Club Lane. The plot is large with a fenced curtilage, gardens and a pond to the front and a boat shed/workshop at the rear backing onto fields used for horses and chickens. On the opposite side of the road is Pendragon, another large dwelling house of similar prominence.

The 1.5 storey dwelling is of a relatively modern construction with a lot of design features. It is granite faced with some hanging tiles, mixed fenestration with large white UPVC windows and doors including feature dormers, windows and mock multi-pane windows. The roof is steeply pitched with multiple dormers, the roof covering is reddish-brown concrete tiles.

The conservatory subject to the proposal is also more of a design feature than usual and projects out from the front elevation on a single storey part of the dwelling which extends from the south end. It has a glass roof which is steeply pitched matching the rest of the dwelling and a rounded frontage with French doors leading out over the retaining wall where the garden then slopes steeply It steeply to the west overlooking Seaways Farm and Juliets Garden.

The conservatory can only be partially viewed from the road being obscured in part by the dwelling itself. The only other views of this area of the dwelling are distant when travelling along Porthloo Lane at the bottom of Porthloo Hill (not on the hill) or from the town and quay area of St Mary's where although on the skyline, the tree belts along Telegraph Road behind the property break the skyline first.

The proposal is to replace the double glazed glass on the conservatory roof with a modern lightweight plastic/composite roof tiling system that would then be fully insulated underneath. The current glass units on the conservatory have blown and the room is too hot in summer and too cold in winter for year round use. The proposal would make the area useable all year round, the roof covering would be in a colour to match the existing dwelling roof as closely as possible.
