Dear Sirs,

Since the creation of Holgate's Green as a community space The Park is little used. Its layout with uncut hedging illustrates the way it is now viewed.

Therefore, The Park should be considered for redevelopment as space for markets and the mobile food outlets. Taking out the hedging would save money on gardening.

This would give a new lease of life for The Park and enable Holgate's Green to continue in its present role and not to become "cluttered" and misused by the mobile food outlets.
