Site Description and Proposed Development

Charlotte House is a two-storey dwelling situated halfway up Garrison Lane. Constructed from granite with a natural slate roof and painted timber windows and doors it is sited within its own curtilage bounded by 2m granite walls and a number of trees sheltering the property. Apart from the Old Wesleyan Chapel 40m down the hill, the rest of the development in the area is relatively modern.

This application relates to the granite porch on the east facing elevation within the enclosed grounds of the property and not generally visible from the public highway that runs past. This elevation of the building is of an asymmetrical layout with a small granite porch projecting out from the center with a gable end. The porch is of granite construction with a glazed light set in the gable above a light blue painted timber door, windows on the north and west elevations and a natural slate roof.

The proposal is to remove the current porch and replace with a larger 3.1m<sup>2</sup> porch with a mono pitched roof and a small dormer like structure over the door which is offset on the east elevation to the north side with a long vertical window to the south. The proposed porch will be of the same materials as existing – granite, natural slate, painted timber windows/re-used door with Lindab gutters and stainless steel rain chains. This results in a larger porch re-orientated across the front of the dwelling.
